

Media release

Petition handover

8 October 2015

The Mineworkers Union of Namibia (MUN) Rössing branch handed over a petition, which was accepted by the mine's acting managing director, Martin Tjipita, on site on Wednesday 7 October 2015.

Rössing is committed to transparency, meaningful consultation, respect for the rule of law and the rights of our neighbouring communities.

Our priority remains the health and safety of all our employees. Workplace health and safety is a basic employment right and the mine has a formalised Health, Safety and Environmental (HSE) Management system which demonstrates the Company's consistent application of HSE best practices.

We are committed to providing employment and career development opportunities to Namibians and have invested greatly in the training of fellow Namibians over the mine's 39 years of production.

The Rössing Foundation plays a significant role in establishing and maintaining effective relationships with our neighbouring communities, characterised by mutual respect, active partnership and long-term commitment.

Production at Rössing was not impacted by the petition handover.

Leah Von Hagen
General Manager Organisational Resources
Rössing Uranium Limited